A Directory for Friends, Families & Professionals

Updated: January 2022

This directory is maintained by:

Greenville County Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse (GCCADA)

Substance use disorders are problems that affect people of all ages, races, religions, and classes. The consequences of drug use are costly and devastating to the individual, the family, and the community.

This directory is comprised of agencies and organizations that are committed to providing alcohol and other drug use disorder education, prevention, intervention, treatment and recovery services to the Greenville community and surrounding areas.

Although the primary philosophical approach and treatment modality presented in this document represents state of the art scientific and medical research, the Phoenix Center actively encourages partnership with all segments of the community which are able to demonstrate a positive impact on this pervasive problem. This includes a willingness to respect diversity of thought and the right of other persons and organizations to maintain and act upon opposing philosophical positions and viewpoints with respect to substance use treatment, including those held by some faith-based organizations which may view substance use on some level as willful behavior.

In encouraging this community partnership, officers, staff, and volunteers of the Phoenix Center will display appropriate levels of courtesy and respect toward community members and organizations that represent such opposing viewpoints and ideas.

As philosophies and approaches to this problem are as diverse as the individual beliefs upon which they are based, available space prohibits their delineation. Accordingly, anyone interested in such an alternative approach is strongly encouraged to ask questions of or about the organization prior to beginning or submitting to any treatment or training protocol.

Duplication and use of information in this document is permitted. We encourage readers to learn more about alcohol and other drug use disorder problems and identify helpful services through this directory. Questions, comments, or requests for additional information or copies of this publication may be made by contacting the Phoenix Center at (864) 467-3790.

Information in this directory is updated regularly, so be sure to review it as often as you like. If you know of any organization or service that should be added, please feel free to let us know.

PART I: An Introduction to Alcohol & Other Substance Use Disorders and Responses

Overview

Substance use disorders are among the most pervasive health and social problems in the United States today. Substance use increases:

- Instances of accidents, especially in motor vehicles
- The incidence of illness, disability, and early death
- Disruptions of family life and household responsibilities
- The incidence of domestic violence, sexual assault, and suicide
- The commission of crimes, including homicide.
- The incident of child abuse and neglect.

Some people who drink or take drugs occasionally do not experience problems from using these substances, although it is possible to have a serious injury or even to die from a single episode of alcohol or drug use. However, with heavier, more frequent use, they are more likely to experience problems with health, family members, friends, school, work or the legal system.

Substance use disorder refers to a pattern of use resulting in health consequences or impairment in social, psychological, occupational functioning, problems in living, physical addiction, compulsive use, craving and increased tolerance. The diagnosis of a substance use disorder is made on a continuum based on eleven criteria. Based upon how many criteria one meets, they may be diagnosed with mild, moderate, or severe substance use disorder.

Their consequences appear in every socioeconomic stratum, educational level, geographic region and ethnic and racial group. Of the 218 million people in the United States age 12 and older, 48% were using alcohol in 2001. Of those people, about 21% engaged in high-risk binge drinking (five or more drinks) and 6% were high-risk heavy drinkers. In 2001, 13 percent of the population, 17 million Americans, used illicit drugs. It is estimated that 15-20% of persons who have used alcohol or other drugs will become dependent at some point over their lifetimes.

In Greenville County, a 1996 study estimated that 35% of the population of 370,000 uses alcohol regularly. In the year 2000, it was estimated that 30,451 Greenville County citizens age 12 and over met the diagnostic criteria (DSM V) for a substance use disorder, and were in need of treatment. This is a larger number than either Charleston or Richland counties.

It is difficult to put a monetary value on human suffering and loss of life associated with alcohol and other drug problems, but other, more direct costs, add up to big dollars. It is estimated that alcohol and drug use in the United States cost society nearly $246 billion in 1992. Alcohol use accounted for 60% of the total, and drug use accounted for the remaining 40%. Most of the costs are borne by the government and the individual substance user, although families, businesses, the health care system and society also share the burden. Alcohol and illegal drugs present special risks for young people. The number of potential years of life lost to alcohol and drug related injuries are as significant as those lost to heart disease and cancer.

Research shows that treatment not only reduces substance use, but reduces crime as well. Criminal activity declines by 23 to 38% following substance use disorder. Each dollar spent on alcohol and other drug treatment saves Americans $7 by reducing or avoiding costs related to criminal justice, health care and welfare.

Despite these findings, there is a serious gap between the need for and the provision of treatment services. In 1997, 13.9 million people were in need of treatment for severe substance use disorder, but only 2.7 million received treatment services.

Alcohol and Alcoholism (Addiction to Alcohol)

Description

Alcohol is a depressant drug that slows the activity of the brain and the spinal cord. It is a colorless liquid with a sharp, burning taste and is known chemically as ethyl alcohol.

What is Alcoholism?

Alcoholism is a disease characterized by periodic uncontrolled use of alcohol. Few families or friends of people with alcoholism are able to understand why the person 'just can't stop drinking.' The alcoholic can't stop drinking because he or she depends on alcohol to function. The person with alcoholism is often physically and/or psychologically addicted to alcohol. Alcoholism is a treatable disease.

Four Characteristics of Alcoholism

- 1) Alcoholism carries an overwhelming urge to repeat the experience of getting the relaxation or intoxicating effects of alcohol. At times, this urge will go beyond the strength of a person's willpower to do otherwise, no matter how much risk seems to be involved.
- 2) The urge to drink becomes the number one priority in the person's life.
- 3) The urge to drink becomes linked to all other aspects of life.
- 4) A person with alcoholism is many times viewed as someone with a treatable disease that is best managed by abstinence to seek long-term healing and recovery. Typically someone in recovery that returns to drinking would have difficulty doing so socially, and would often to return to problematic alcohol consumption. As time passes with sobriety, the urge reduces in intensity and frequency but can return at any time.

What causes alcoholism?

Experts believe that genetic factors make certain people more vulnerable to alcoholism. Environmental, social, cultural and psychological factors can also contribute to the development of the disease. The Phoenix Center's treatment model acknowledges there are biological, psychological, social, spiritual, and experiential aspects to the development of, and recovery from substance use disorders.

Scope of the Problem

Approximately seven out of ten adults drink alcohol, and of these about one of ten have a severe alcohol use disorder. One-third of all preventable deaths in the U.S. are related to the use of this drug. About one-half of all highway deaths are alcohol-related.

What can a person with alcoholism do?

Although alcoholism cannot be cured, people can recover and return to a normal way of life. Recovery typically depends on abstinence from alcohol and other drugs. Those suffering from alcoholism come to realize that alcohol has become a problem and cannot be controlled. They often seek help at the urging of family members, employers, or their physician. Many community resources are available to address this problem. Use this directory to find help or call Outpatient Services at (864) 467-3737 for more information.

Treatment

Treatment for alcoholism is available in many forms depending on individual needs. Most common are detoxification, inpatient and/or residential treatment, medication-assisted treatment, and outpatient treatment depending on individual needs. Effective treatment may include individual, group and family counseling, community based support group involvement (e.g, Alcoholics Anonymous, FAVOR, Celebrate Recovery), and education about alcoholism to address the person's physical, mental and emotional needs, which are all affected by addiction.

Other Drugs of Use and Addiction

Drugs are natural and synthetic chemical “substances” which can be used to affect a person physically, emotionally, and/or behaviorally. They can be legal (prescription, over-the-counter, including alcohol) or illegal. Used properly to treat a medical problem, drugs protect against disease, correct imbalances in body chemistry and treat many health problems.

Definitions

Drug misuse is a pattern of drug use that includes: (1) Continued use despite knowledge that on-going or occasional social, relationship, occupational, psychological or physical problems are caused or exacerbated by the drug use; and/or (2) the repeated use in physically hazardous situations (such as driving while under the influence). Severe substance use disorders or addiction is a physical and/or psychological need or compulsion to continue to use drugs despite serious consequences. It is marked by tolerance (a need for an ever-increasing amount to achieve the same effect), and an inability to control or limit use.

Some people misuse a chemical substance, legal or illegal, which results in an individual’s physical, mental, emotional or social impairment. Other people suffer from a more serious substance use disorder (addiction). A simple definition of addiction is if the use of alcohol or other drugs is causing any continuing disruption in an individual’s physical, personal, social, spiritual or economic life. The diagnosis of a substance use disorder is made on a continuum based on eleven criteria. Based upon how many criteria one meets, they may be diagnosed with mild, moderate, or severe substance use disorder.

Severe substance use disorders are quite different. Because substance use disorders can be complicated, it is extremely important that the individual be assessed to determine the correct level of treatment or counseling which is needed. See page 10 for a description of treatments available.

Scope of Problem

There are no “typical” drugusers. They may be young, old, professionals, unemployed, rich or poor. Studies say many who uses substances will use at least one other drug. People who use substances or are addicted may face serious problems – health problems (liver, brain, kidney damage/failure), overdose (possibly fatal), accidents, legal problems, poor work performance or job loss, financial difficulties, and family problems.

Why do people start?

Generally, most people who begin to use drugs are either trying to eliminate negative feelings or create pleasurable feelings with their drugs of use. Eventually, the drugs stop working due to increased tolerance and brain changes and the substance use becomes a much more serious problem, in addition to the original problem or uncomfortable feeling. People often deny the seriousness of their problem with drugs in hopes of being able to continue to use without further difficulty.

What Can A Substance User Do?

Although addiction cannot be cured, people can recover and return to a normal way of life. Recovery may include total abstinence, the use of MAT (Medication Assisted Treatment), and/or other harm reduction methods to assist someone obtain and maintain stabilization and improved quality of life. Those suffering from addiction come to acknowledge that their drug use has become a problem and cannot be controlled. Many community resources are available to address this problem. Use this directory to find help or call Outpatient Services to schedule an appointment at (864) 467-3737 for more information.

Treatment

Drug use and addiction can be arrested with proper treatment. Treatment settings can include detoxification, inpatient/residential treatment, medication-assisted treatment, and outpatient treatment depending on individual needs. Components of treatment may include individual, group and family counseling, community based support group involvement (e.g. Narcotics Anonymous, FAVOR, Celebrate Recovery), and education about addictions to address the person's physical, mental, social, emotional and spiritual needs, which are all affected by addiction.

Stages of Alcohol and Other Drug Use

Experimental Use/Contact Stage

- Person tries alcohol and/or other drugs because of curiosity about their effects.
- For many people, alcohol and/or other drug use stops or remains at this level.

Recreational Use Stage

- Person uses alcohol and/or other drugs to alter mood in social settings but typically can start and stop at anytime.

Regular Use Stage

- Person uses alcohol and/or other drugs in regular patterns over periods of time.
- Use can be situational (to celebrate; for stress or depression) or binge use
- Tolerance begins to increase. (Takes more alcohol/drugs to get the same feeling and effect)

Excessive Use Stage

- User spends a great deal of time, energy and money on getting and using alcohol and/or other drugs.
- Alcohol and/or other drug use may be solitary or take place in social situations where substance use is the central activity .
- Preoccupation with the quality and effects of alcohol and/or other drugs becomes noticeable.
- Psychological and physical impairments become apparent.
- Daily functioning is noticeably affected.
- Responsibilities are neglected. Blackouts may occur
- Relationships with others may become strained and go downhill rapidly.
- Family members struggle with how to help their loved ones.
- Tolerance is significantly higher.

Severe Substance Use Disorder Stage

- Person uses alcohol and/or other drugs to avoid withdrawal symptoms, which occur after development of physical dependence (DT's, "Shakes" or Opioid Withdrawal).
- Cravings (Mental and Physical)
- High Tolerance
- Unsuccessful efforts to stop or cut back
- Continued use despite physical/psychological problems
- Recurrent use in hazardous situations (Such as driving under influence)
- Social-occupational-recreational activities are reduced
- Social relationship problems with loved ones
- Failure to fulfill work-school-home obligations
- Excessive time spent using, recovering from use
- Use in large amounts, or over longer time than intended

Warning Signs

Alcoholism

- Decide to take only one drink or set limits, but then continue to drink until intoxicated.
- Feel guilty about drinking.
- Spend a lot of time planning occasions to drink.
- Are intoxicated during important times (work, school, family time).
- Give up hobbies and outside interests due to drinking.
- Build up a tolerance so they have to drink more to feel effect of alcohol.
- Get physically or emotionally ill when they stop drinking.
- Begin drinking to relieve or avoid getting physically or emotionally ill.
- Are frequently arguing with relatives and friends about their drinking.
- Know all of the above is happening, but struggle with making the decision to seek treatment.

Other Drugs (Addiction)

- Decide to use only one time or to set limits, but continue to lose control.
- Feel guilty about using drugs.
- Spend a lot of time planning how to get and use their drug of use.
- Are under the influence of drugs during important times (work, school, family times).
- Give up their hobbies and outside interests due to their drug use.
- Build up a tolerance so they have to use more of their drug of use to get the effect that they want.
- Get physically or emotionally ill when they stop using.
- Begin using to relieve or avoid getting physically or emotionally ill.
- Are frequently arguing with relatives and friends about their drug use.
- Know all of the above is happening, but struggle with making the decision to seek treatment.

CAGE Screen Test*

Brief Interventions can start by asking four simple questions. If a person answers “yes” to two or more, there is an 88% chance that the person has an alcohol problem.

(CAGE stands for Cut down, Annoyed, Guilty, Eye-opener.)

C: Have you ever felt you should cut down on your drinking?

A: Have people annoyed you by criticizing your drinking?

G: Have you ever felt bad or guilty about your drinking?

E: Have you ever had a drink first thing in the morning (an eye-opener) to steady your nerves or to get rid of a hangover?

*J.A. Ewing, “Detecting Alcoholism: The CAGE Questionnaire: JAMA, 252: 1905-1907, 1984. CAGE is an internationally used assessment instrument for identifying alcoholics. It is particularly popular with primary care givers.

A Self-Test

Do you have a problem with alcohol and/or other drugs?
Check all those statements below which describe you.

- I frequently (once or twice a day) find that my conversation centers on drinking experiences and/or drug using.
- I drink or get high to deal with tension or physical stress.
- Most of my friends or acquaintances are people I drink or get high with.
- I have lost days of work or school because of drinking or other drug use.
- I have had the shakes when going without drinking or using drugs.
- I regularly get high or take a drink upon awakening, before eating, or while at work or school.
- I have been arrested for Driving Under the Influence of a substance.
- I have periods of time that I cannot remember.
- Family members think drinking or other drug use is a problem for me.
- I have tried to quit using substance but cannot (A good test is voluntarily going for six weeks without substances and not experiencing physical or emotional distress).
- I often double up and/or gulp drinks or use more drugs than others at parties.
- I often drink or take drugs to “get ready” for social occasions.
- I regularly hide alcohol/drugs from those close to me so that they will not know how much I am using.
- I often drink or get high by myself.
- My drinking or use of drugs has led to conflicts with my friends or family members.

Scoring: If you checked as many as three of the above statements you should be concerned about the way you use substances. If you checked as many as five, you may have the beginnings of a substance use disorder. If you checked more than five, you should talk about your use of substances with a professional counselor. Use this directory to find the help you need or call Outpatient Services to schedule an appointment at (864) 467-3737.

Taken from Innovations in Clinical Practice: A Source Book, edited by Peter A. Keller & Lawrence G. Ritt, 1982, p. 291.

Prevention

In the United States, prevention is chiefly focused on efforts to prevent the onset of first use of alcohol, tobacco and other drugs. Consequently, it is aimed primarily (although not exclusively) at children.

To this end, substance use education curricula are in place in the nation's public schools; the Partnership for a Drug-Free America places informational public service announcements in the media; the Federal Center for Substance Abuse Prevention supports an array of programs operated by local community-based organizations; and the National Clearinghouse for Alcohol and Drug Information provides free information to the public about alcohol, tobacco, and other drugs.

Parents are important targets in many prevention programs. These programs try to inform parents about substance use and give them the skills to foster changes in those behaviors that are risk factors for children's future alcohol and other drug use.

Intervention

Family intervention is a process, which helps train and guide loved ones and friends in how to approach someone with an alcohol or other drug problem. It is designed to enable those with a substance use disorder to recognize and accept treatment. The process includes individual, group, and rehearsal sessions to prepare the team in the "do's", and most importantly, the "don'ts" of intervention. It is a loving and caring approach and quite effective when done properly. Professional guidance by a trained interventionist is recommended.

Other intervention efforts are designed to reach substance users before they reach addiction. For that reason, intervention services are frequently part of referral networks for troubled behaviors, are built into prevention and/or treatment programs as a separate component, or, in comprehensive substance use treatment programs.

Employee assistance programs (EAPs) are one example of the intervention concept. Other examples include special after-school and alternative school programs aimed at high-risk youth. These intervention programs help children change course before they develop a severe substance use disorder. Student assistance, peer counseling, and student health services are among the most popular types of intervention services for youth.

First offender and special programs for those that are charged with driving under the influence are examples of intervention programs for youth and adults sponsored by the criminal justice system. Again, with the added outside pressure of court-mandated participation, a proportion of nondependent users are able to change their substance-using behaviors.

Treatment

Despite efforts to prevent and intervene with substance use before it becomes a problem, many adults and adolescents develop problems with alcohol use and other drug use. Addictions and the behavior that accompanies it, has a variety of negative impacts on their lives and seriously impairs their capacity for positive functioning in the family, at school, at work or in the community.

Diagnostic criteria for substance use disorder include physical impacts, such as marked tolerance and symptoms of withdrawal, and psychological consequences, including craving and a mental preoccupation on obtaining the substance. Addiction fuels destructive behavior patterns that are exceedingly difficult to break.

Few people addicted to alcohol and other drugs can simply stop using on their own, no matter how strong their inner resolve. Most need one or more courses of structured substance use disorder treatment to recover.

Substance use treatment programs differ in philosophy, setting, duration, and approach. Most involve some combination of detoxification, rehabilitation, medication-assisted treatment, continuing care, peer support, and support groups. As in other areas of medical treatment, there are several different “levels of care”, which allow individuals to be treated at the most appropriate level of intensity. It is important to provide the most appropriate mix of services and settings for each client based on an assessment of individual needs and cultural relevance.

Detoxification is the therapeutic, medically supervised withdrawal from the use of alcohol or other drugs. Physiologically, detoxification is usually complete within 3-7 days. Craving and other physical and psychological symptoms of addiction, however, may persist for weeks or longer. Medications can reduce some of the discomforts of withdrawal or minimize medical complications. Detoxification stabilizes clients and allows them to move on to the next step of their recovery, where they can more effectively respond to counseling, treatment, peer support, and support groups.

Rehabilitation is the phase of treatment during which clients learn how to change their behavior to sustain sobriety. Individual and group counseling, family counseling, education, anti-craving medications, peer support, support groups, tutoring and vocational training, values clarification, social skills education and training, and other relevant services are all part of the process of preparing clients for life without alcohol and other drugs.

Rehabilitation is provided in a variety of forms and settings: hospital inpatient, long-term residential, short-term residential, halfway houses, therapeutic communities, intensive day treatment, intensive outpatient treatment, and traditional outpatient, and MAT (Medication Assisted Treatment) Being matched to the right level of care is critical to successful recovery. To provide guidelines that help the field of addictions treatment place individuals in the most efficient and effective level of service, the American Society of Addiction Medicine (ASAM), published the “Patient Placement Criteria for the Treatment of Substance-Related Disorders.”

Depending upon one’s inner and outer strengths and support networks, and based on one’s individual differences, treatment may be shorter or longer-term based upon the consequences resulting from their substance use. Treatment can assist with erasing old and enduring habits, while incorporating or returning to new habits and values, and provide skills that make living a healthy and happy life possible.

Continuing care usually provided in the traditional outpatient setting, is the ongoing phase of the treatment process. Many people with addictions stay involved in continuing care throughout their lives. Community based support group programs, such as Alcoholics Anonymous, Narcotics Anonymous, FAVOR, Celebrate Recovery, and SMART Recovery, and Faith Based Programs are among the best-known support systems to maintain treatment benefits. They offer encouragement and moral support among people who are true peers. Also called maintenance or aftercare, these support systems have proven very effective in preventing a return to active use.

Avoiding a Return to Use (Recurrence) Strategies can be applied after, or in conjunction with, the primary treatment. In general, these strategies focus on training clients to anticipate and cope with the possibility of having a recurrence of use, and helping clients modify their lives to reduce their exposure to high-risk situations and strengthen their overall coping abilities.

Help for families can be found in Al-Anon, Alateen, FAVOR family support groups, and other community based support group programs. Substance use disorder is a family illness. It is estimated that one person’s substance use disorder negatively affects the lives of at least four other people.

These special support groups for the spouses, family members, and children of those with a substance use disorder helps address their problems and provide information and support as they cope with the process of their own recovery from the ill effects of their loved one’s addiction.

Primary Focus: To provide Mental Health services to mentally ill clients in the city of Greenville or the western part of Greenville County and to provide assessment services to determine the psychiatric treatment needs of clients.

Services Provided: Outpatient mental health counseling including individual, family and group therapy, activity therapy and living skills programs for chronically mentally ill, day treatment programs, case management services, assessments and psychiatric evaluations – a full array of outpatient treatment services and inpatient treatment through local and South Carolina Department of Mental Health inpatient facilities. Crisis intervention services available 24 hours a day.

Special Programs or Groups: Alcohol and drug services are available to dually diagnosed clients, meaning you have a diagnosis of mental illness. If there is no diagnosis of mental illness, you will be referred to local alcohol and drug treatment programs.

What Can I expect:	A brief screening over the phone. If you are appropriate for treatment, you can walk in for an assessment interview or schedule a specific appointment date and time. After assessment, you will be assigned to a case manager for treatment services within a treatment team coordinated by a center physician. Medicaid clients can ride the Medicaid van to appointments. Emergencies are seen the day of initial call – others are asked to walk in the next day.
Program Fees:	We offer a sliding fee scale based on income and number of family members. Treatment is also covered by Medicare, Medicaid and most insurance policies. You need to bring proof of medical coverage, income and social security card to the first appointment if possible. Self-paying clients are expected to make payments on a regular basis and payment plans may be used when needed.
Eligibility:	Children and adolescents and their families, adults, senior adults, and chronically mentally ill clients. We do not provide alcohol or drug treatment unless the client is dually diagnosed (assessed as having both a mental illness and alcohol/drug addiction).

Primary Focus: The problem is, these statements don't take into account any underlying factors triggering the behavior. We help people who want to get out of unproductive patterns causing them difficulty. Most of us know when we're doing something that is causing trouble, but many times, we continue to do it anyway. At our outpatient treatment center, we delve into the issue deep enough to figure out why the pattern continues, and then coach the person on how to get their needs met more productively. Instead of just telling you to stop, we help you find better solutions.

Services Provided: Assessment & Testing, Intensive Outpatient Counseling, Adult & Adolescent

Outpatient Counseling, and Recovery Monitoring.

Special Programs or Groups: Information unknown

What Can I expect: First, we have a diagnostic interview with the client. We also meet with the family to assess their point of view and identify any counterproductive patterns. For the last part of the assessment process, we use neurocognitive testing to diagnose any underlying mental health or organic issues that may be adding to the problem. Because we know our clients are looking for direct feedback, we want to make sure we have a clear picture of what's going on. Changing behavior generally requires a change in thinking and some strategic changes in the person's living environment. So, after gathering all the appropriate information, we develop an individualized addiction treatment plan to address these factors. Most often, we will want the family to continue to see our family counselor to receive education, as well as learn how to best support the changes their loved one is trying to make.

Physical Address: 428 Fairhaven Dr. Taylors, SC 29687	Mailing Address: Information unknown	Website and/or Email: www.oxfordhouse.org/

- Primary Focus: Oxford House is a concept in recovery from drug and alcohol addiction. In its simplest form, an Oxford House describes a democratically run, self-supporting and drug free home. Parallel to this concept lies the organizational structure of Oxford House, Inc. This publicly supported, non-profit 501(c)3 corporation is the umbrella organization which provides the network connecting all Oxford Houses and allocates resources to duplicate the Oxford House concept where needs arise.

Services Provided: A recovering individual can live in an Oxford House for as long as he or she does not drink alcohol, does not use drugs, and pays an equal share of the house expenses. The average stay is about a year, but many residents stay three, four, or more years. There is no pressure on anyone in good standing to leave.

Special Programs or Groups: Women and children; hearing impaired.

What Can I expect: Any recovering alcoholic or drug addict can apply to get into any Oxford House by filling out an application and being interviewed by the existing members of the House. The application is then considered by the membership of the House and if there is a vacancy and if 80% of the members approve, the applicant is accepted and moves in. If an applicant does not get voted into one house he or she should try another house in the area. The Oxford House website contains an application and information about How to Apply to live in an Oxford House.

Program Fees: Information unknown

Eligibility: There is no specific amount of sobriety needed. Generally an individual comes into an Oxford House following a 28-day rehabilitation program or at least a 5 to 10-day detoxification program.

Primary Focus:	The Renewal Program was established at Shepherd's Gate in 1997 in answer to the growing demand for women who need a more structured, long-term program to help them deal with life-dominating problems. Women who experience physical and sexual violence are at a higher risk for substance abuse than women who do not. Shepherd's Gate's Renewal Program focuses on freedom from life-dominating addictions through a relationship with Jesus Christ and by following spiritual and practical principles of the Bible.
Services Provided:	Miracle Hill's Renewal center offers a 6-month, residential program using a 12-step model to help women experience freedom from life-dominating addictions.
Special Programs or Groups:	Information unknown
What Can I expect:	Renewal guests receive intensive counseling, mentoring, structure and accountability as they learn practical and spiritual principles from the Bible and develop a relationship with Jesus Christ. After guests graduate from the program, transitional housing provides a halfway point between the strict accountability of life within one of our shelters and the onslaught of temptations beyond our walls. Participants in transitional housing practice applying the principles they learned within the Renewal program. They commit to six months of living in Miracle Hill housing, during which they keep close contact with a mentor from a local church and attend weekly support group meetings.

Physical Address: 4742 Broad St. Sumter, SC 29154	Mailing Address: Information unknown	Website and/or Email: http://anylength.org/ info@anylength.org

Primary Focus: At Any Length we realize that recovery has no time limit. Unlike treatment with a limited stay, Any Length recognizes that each person recovers at his or her own pace. We understand that the recovery process takes time. Many successful residents found it necessary to make a serious commitment in lieu of short-term treatment alternatives. While treatment can instruct on how to recover, this is where we do recover.

Services Provided: Long-term recovery housing

Special Programs or Groups: Information unknown

What Can I expect: The minimum length of stay is three months and residents have the opportunity of staying as long as they wish.

Program Fees: Information unknown

Eligibility: At Any Length Recovery we strive to maintain a community of motivated and inspired residents. Our community is full of people who have been to other treatment centers and been unsuccessful. Whether someone is referred by another institution or makes a self-motivated inquiry, our standard procedure for admission consists of a short, over-the-phone interview. This interview helps our recovery team to assess whether or not our facility will meet the needs of the potential resident, and whether or not the potential resident would be an appropriate candidate. Quite often potential residents have become physically dependent. If our staff assesses that the candidate needs medical detoxification, we will make a referral to an appropriate detoxification facility. It is pertinent that all residents be free from any physical dependency upon admission to ALR.

Shalom House Ministries

Telephone: (864) 338-9875	Fax: (864) 338-9876	Hours: 24 hours a day, 7 days a week
-------------------------------------	-------------------------------	--

Physical Address: 349 Blake Dairy Rd. Belton, SC 29627	Mailing Address: Same	Website and/or Email: www.shalomrecovery.com
---	---------------------------------	--

Primary Focus: Shalom House is a non-profit ministry for women coming out of alcohol and drug treatment centers. We hope to help women have a new life without the need for alcohol and drugs in their everyday life through Shalom House and Shalom Place. Shalom Center, which will open in the Fall of '07 will offer long-term treatment at our new 104-acre facility in Belton.

Services Provided: The goal of Shalom House is to allow women to complete the recovery process while adapting to daily life again to ensure long-term recovery. Women at Shalom House are active in:

- Alcoholics Anonymous or Narcotics Anonymous meetings
- Part-time or full-time employment
- Weekly Bible Study
- DSS Treatment Plan (for mothers with children)
- Continuing job training and education
- Relationship reconciliation

Special Programs or Groups: Information unknown

What Can I expect: Shalom House believes that women who have struggled with drugs and alcohol need a safe place to regroup after receiving treatment but before returning home. We will provide that place by offering a structured, spiritual, nurturing environment where the women can learn independent living skills which will help break the cycle of chemical dependence.

Program Fees: Rent is paid weekly. The average length of stay is approximately six months, but a year or more of residence is common.

Eligibility: Information unknown

Celebrate Recovery (Alpha Order By City)

- Primary Focus: Celebrate Recovery is a ministry based on the words of Christ designed to help adults overcome every type of hurt, habit or hang-up as they pursue a relationship with God. Whether you're struggling with anger, food issues, codependency, chemical addiction, overcoming abuse, relationship hurts or any other struggle, Celebrate Recovery is a safe place to heal and grow within a supportive community.
- Services Provided: The Celebrate Recovery meeting is made up of three separate components that work together to promote healing: Large Group, Open Share Groups, and Crosstalk Cafe.
- Special Programs or Groups: Information unknown
- What Can I expect: To create a safe environment, these five guidelines are read and honored at every Celebrate Recovery Open Share or Step Study Group. Our leaders will also share additional explanations of these guidelines to help you understand them better.
1. Keep your sharing focused on your own thoughts and feelings, using "I" statements to talk about your own actions or thoughts. Limit your sharing to 3 to 5 minutes.
 2. There is NO cross talk. Each person is free to express his or her feelings without interruption.
 3. We are here to support one another, not "fix" one another.
 4. Anonymity and confidentiality are basic requirements. What is shared in the group stays in the group. The only exception is when someone threatens to injure themselves or others.
 5. Offensive language has no place in a Christ centered recovery program.
- Program Fees: No charge
- Eligibility: Celebrate Recovery is for adults 18 years and older. Celebrate Recovery is for anyone who has a Hurt, Habit or Hang-up in their life—which is everyone.
- Accreditation Not applicable

-------------------------------------	-------------------------------	--

Physical Address: 349 Blake Dairy Rd. Belton, SC 29627	Mailing Address: Same	Website and/or Email: www.shalomrecovery.com
---	---------------------------------	--

Primary Focus: Shalom House is a non-profit ministry for women coming out of alcohol and drug treatment centers. We hope to help women have a new life without the need for alcohol and drugs in their everyday life through Shalom House and Shalom Place. Shalom Center, which will open in the Fall of '07 will offer long-term treatment at our new 104-acre facility in Belton.

Services Provided: The goal of Shalom House is to allow women to complete the recovery process while adapting to daily life again to ensure long-term recovery.

Women at Shalom House are active in:

- Alcoholics Anonymous or Narcotics Anonymous meetings
- Part-time or full-time employment
- Weekly Bible Study
- DSS Treatment Plan (for mothers with children)
- Continuing job training and education
- Relationship reconciliation

Special Programs or Groups: Information unknown

What Can I expect: Shalom House believes that women who have struggled with drugs and alcohol need a safe place to regroup after receiving treatment but before returning home. We will provide that place by offering a structured, spiritual, nurturing environment where the women can learn independent living skills which will help break the cycle of chemical dependence.

Program Fees: Rent is paid weekly. The average length of stay is approximately six months, but a year or more of residence is common.

Primary Focus: Triune Mercy Center is a non-denominational mission church that ministers alongside the homeless in downtown Greenville, South Carolina.

Services Provided: At Triune, we attempt to empower rather than enable. Toward that end, our relief work is limited to four hot meals a week, a grocery pantry and laundry services. Every other ministry is aimed at offering transformational possibilities to our parishioners – from drug rehab to social work to advice from our volunteer lawyers.

Special Programs or Groups: Employment, housing, medical, drug rehabilitation/recovery, AA/NA, social work/counseling, and food assistance.

What Can I expect: The first step toward recovery is admitting you need help. Our rehabilitation case manager, David Gay, helps people access treatment centers all over the Carolinas and Georgia. Call him at 864-233-8020, ext. 130.

Program Fees: Triune receives offerings and donations from individuals, churches and foundations. Our partner churches completely pay for, cook and serve the meals at our weekend soup kitchen. Our food pantry is stocked almost entirely with donations.
